

During the period disrupted by COVID-19, where students are working under remote supervision, it is necessary for there to be some relaxation of the Work Experience Rules.

The expectation is that there will be at least daily contact between the supervisor and the GDLP student to discuss:

- how written work will be dealt with;
- how new tasks will be assigned; and
- how ad hoc queries will be addressed.

While working remotely, students must not have direct client contact in the absence of the supervisor.

Students must keep a supervision diary setting out the time, date and contact method for each supervision meeting. A pro-forma is below.

At the end of the GDLP placement, this diary must be signed by both supervisor and student and submitted to the GDLP provider with the other usual paperwork required.
